UK trade with China: a summary

This short note provides some key statistics on UK trade with China

UK exports to China £30.7 billion

China was the UK's sixth largest export market in 2019, accounting for 4% of all UK exports of goods and services

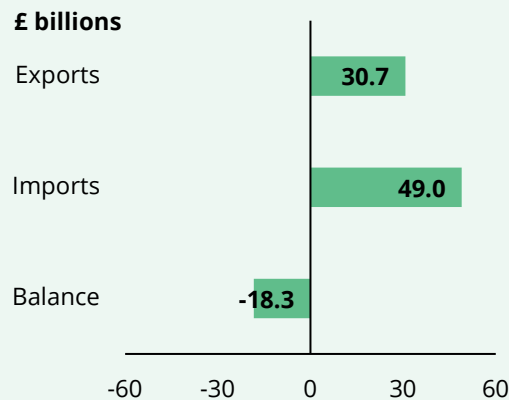

UK imports from China £49.0 billion

China was the UK's fourth largest source of imports in 2019, accounting for 7% of UK imported goods and services

Trade balance with China -£18.3 billion

The UK recorded a trade deficit with China of -£18.3 billion in 2019; a small surplus in services was outweighed by a deficit in goods

UK trade with China, 1999-2019 (goods and services, % total)

UK trade with China has increased dramatically in recent years - in 1999, China was the UK's 26th largest export market and 15th largest source of imports, accounting for 0.7% of UK exports and 1.5% of imports.

1. Key statistics

In 2019:

- UK exports of goods and services to China were worth £30.7 billion, a record high, up from £23.4 billion in 2018. This is the fourth successive year on year increase in British exports to China.
- UK imports of goods and services from China in 2019 were £49.0 billion, also a record high. UK imports from China have now grown year on year every year since 1999.
- The UK's trade deficit with China was -£18.3 billion in 2019. This was the UK's second largest trade deficit with an individual country - the UK's trade deficit Germany -£19.6 billion. Taken as a bloc, the UK's trade deficit with the EU was -£72.3 billion.

Overall, UK exports to China represented 4.4% of all UK exports; UK imports from China represented 6.8% of all UK imports.

Looking at trade in goods only, the UK exported £25.1 billion to China in 2019, a record high, up from £18.8 billion in 2019. UK imports of goods from China were £46.9 billion, up slightly from 2018, resulting in a trade deficit of -£21.8 billion in trade in goods.

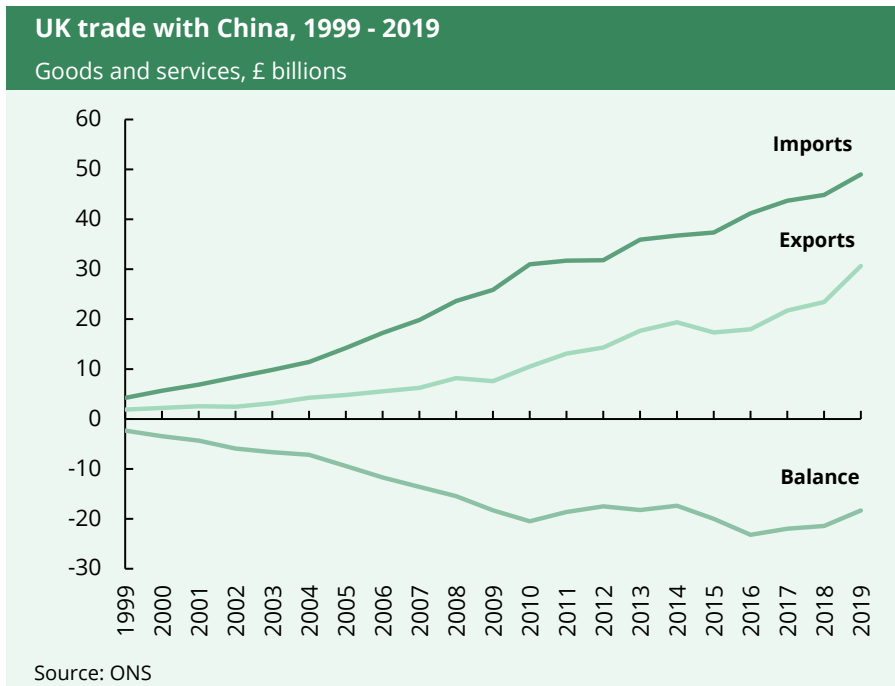

The UK had a surplus of £3.5 billion on trade in services with China in 2019, exporting a record high of £5.5 billion of services and importing £2.1 billion.

5 Statistics on UK trade with China

The UK has now recorded an overall trade deficit with China every year since 1999 – surpluses in services have been more than outweighed by deficits in goods. In recent years, the UK's trade deficit with China has narrowed, from a high of -£25.6 billion in 2016 to -£18.3 billion in 2019.

In cash terms, UK exports from China have increased from £1.9 billion in 1999; imports from China have increased from £4.2 billion – details on UK trade with China since 1999 are available in the Appendix.

2. International context

In 2019:

- China was the UK's 6th largest export market and 4th largest source of imports.
- China was the UK's second largest export market and source of imports outside of the EU (after the USA).

4. Trade in services

4.1 Exports

In 2018, the UK's single largest service export to China was "other business services", valued at £1 billion, making up just over a fifth of UK service exports to China. This category includes legal, accounting, advertising, research and development, architectural, engineering and other professional and technical services.

Other service exports to China included travel services – this category includes services provided by hotels and restaurants, travel agencies and tour operators and will include services consumed by a resident of one country in another – for example a Chinese tourist staying in a hotel in the UK will count as a British service export; a British tourist staying in a Chinese hotel would count as a service import.

The UK's trade surplus in travel services with China (worth £0.7 billion in 2018) was the UK's third largest surplus in travel services, after Australia and Canada.
