Summary

In a referendum held on 23 June 2016, the majority of those who voted chose to leave the European Union.

On 29 March 2017, in writing to European Council President Donald Tusk, the Prime Minister formally triggered Article 50 and began the two-year countdown to the UK formally leaving the EU (commonly known as 'Brexit').

The UK had long been expected to leave the European Union at 11pm on 29 March 2019. However, following a House of Commons vote on 14 March 2019, the Government sought permission from the EU to extend Article 50 and agree a later Brexit date.

On 20 March 2019 the Prime Minister wrote to European Council President Donald Tusk, asking to extend Article 50 until 30 June 2019.

Following a European Council meeting the next day, EU27 leaders agreed to grant an extension comprising two possible dates: 22 May 2019, should the Withdrawal Agreement gain approval from MPs; or 12 April 2019, should the Withdrawal Agreement not be approved by the House of Commons.

On 2 April 2019, the Prime Minister announced she will seek a further extension to the Article 50 process and offered to meet the Leader of the Opposition to agree a deal that can win the support of MPs.

At a meeting of the European Council on 10 April 2019, the UK and EU27 agreed to extend Article 50 until 31 October 2019.

This paper provides a timeline of the major events leading up to the referendum and subsequent dates of note, looking ahead to expected events as the UK and EU negotiate Britain's exit.

24 January 2017

The Supreme Court rejects (by a majority of 8 to 3) the Government's appeal against the November 2016 High Court ruling and states that Ministers "require the authority of primary legislation" in order to give the Article 50 notice.

On the devolution questions raised, the Court unanimously holds that the UK Parliament is not legally required to seek consent from the devolved legislatures.

Responding to the Supreme Court's ruling, the Government issues the following statement:

"The British people voted to leave the EU, and the government will deliver on their verdict – triggering Article 50, as planned, by the end of March. Today's ruling does nothing to change that.

It's important to remember that Parliament backed the referendum by a margin of 6 to 1 and has already indicated its support for getting on with the process of exit to the timetable we have set out.

We respect the Supreme Court's decision, and will set out our next steps to Parliament shortly".

David Davis gives a statement to the House of Commons on Article 50, in response to the judgment by the Supreme Court.

26 January 2017

With legislation a requirement following the Supreme Court's ruling, the Government publishes a draft Bill that will allow the UK to start the process of leaving the EU: The

European Union \(Notification of Withdrawal\) Bill.

The Bill is very short, with only one operative clause:

1. Power to notify withdrawal from the EU

(1) The Prime Minister may notify, under Article 50(2) of the Treaty on European Union, the United Kingdom's intention to withdraw from the EU.

(2) This section has effect despite any provision made by or under the European Communities Act 1972 or any other enactment.

30 January 2017	Writing in the Irish Times , the Prime Minister sets out the Government's commitment to the UK's relationship with the Republic of Ireland: I want Ireland and the UK to have a stronger relationship after Brexit.

14 Brexit timeline: events leading to the UK's exit from the European Union

In the section on Brexit, the party's pledges include:

Labour accepts the referendum result and a Labour government will put the national interest first.

We will prioritise jobs and living standards, build a close new relationship with the EU, protect workers' rights and environmental standards, provide certainty to EU nationals and give a meaningful role to Parliament throughout negotiations.

To scrap the Conservatives' Brexit White Paper and replace it with fresh negotiating priorities that have a strong emphasis on retaining the benefits of the Single Market and the Customs Union.

A Labour government will immediately guarantee existing rights for all EU nationals living in Britain and secure reciprocal rights for UK citizens who have chosen to make their lives in EU countries.

17 May 2017

The Liberal Democrat Party launches its election manifesto.

On Europe, the Liberal Democrats promise:

When the terms of our future relationship with the EU have been negotiated (over the next two years on the Government's timetable), we will put that deal to a vote of the British people in a referendum, with the alternative option of staying in the EU on the ballot paper.

To press for the UK to unilaterally guarantee the rights of EU nationals in the UK.

Continued membership of the single market and customs union.

18 May 2017

The Conservative Party launches its manifesto for the upcoming General Election.

The manifesto includes several policies related to Brexit, including the following pledges:

As we leave the European Union, we will no longer be members of the single market or customs union but we will seek a deep and special partnership including a comprehensive free trade and customs agreement.

The final agreement will be subject to a vote in both houses of parliament.

To agree the terms of our future partnership alongside our withdrawal, reaching agreement on both within the two years allowed by Article 50 of the Treaty on European Union.

Once EU law has been converted into domestic law, parliament will be able to pass legislation to amend, repeal or improve any piece of EU law it chooses, as will the devolved legislatures, where they have the power to do so.

This will be complemented by legislation to ensure that the United Kingdom makes a success of Brexit, establishing new national policies on immigration, international sanctions, nuclear safeguards, agriculture and fisheries.

My Government will seek to maintain a deep and special partnership with European allies and to forge new trading relationships across the globe. New Bills on trade and customs will help to implement an independent trade policy, and support will be given to help British businesses export to markets around the world."

In a Debate on the Address following the Queen's Speech, the Prime Minister gives a brief outline of Brexit-related Bills:

The first part of this Queen's Speech is of course about Brexit—a Brexit deal that works for every part of the country and commands the greatest possible public support. Over 80% of the electorate backed the two major parties, both of which campaigned on manifestos that said that we should honour the democratic decision of the British people, so this Government will respect the will of the British people and see Brexit through. We will seek to build a wide consensus as we do this and as we take Bills through the House, including a trade Bill, a repeal Bill, and an immigration Bill, as has been referred to, and also a Bill to deal with control of access to our waters for fishermen and a new Bill on agriculture to give greater stability to farmers.

40 Brexit timeline: events leading to the UK's exit from the European Union

3 January 2019	The Government publishes updated Brexit guidance for UK nationals living in the EU , in the absence of a withdrawal agreement.
7 January 2019	Jeremy Corbyn is granted an Urgent Question in the House of Commons on legal changes to the EU Withdrawal Agreement and the timetable in the House for a Meaningful Vote.
8 January 2019	MPs debate the Report Stage and Third Reading of the Finance (No. 3) Bill . In a defeat for Theresa May , MPs approve an amendment (303 votes to 296) that limits the government's financial powers in the event of a no-deal Brexit.
9 January 2019	In a further setback to the Prime Minister ahead of the start of five days of Brexit debates, the Speaker of the House of Commons allows an amendment to the business motion by Dominic Grieve, which is passed by 308 votes to 297 . This amendment means that if the government loses the 'meaningful vote' on 15 January 2019, then the Prime Minister will then have to present a new 'Plan B' Brexit plan within three days. The House of Commons then commences the Brexit debates .
10 January 2019	Day 2 of the Brexit debates on the EU Withdrawal Agreement.
11 January 2019	Day 3 of the Brexit debates on the EU Withdrawal Agreement.
14 January 2019	The Prime Minister gives a statement to the House of Commons on the further assurances and clarifications received from the European Union on the Northern Ireland protocol. Later, the Brexit debates on the EU Withdrawal Agreement continue with Day 4 of this series of debates.
15 January 2019	Day 5 of the Brexit debates on the EU Withdrawal Agreement. The 'Meaningful Vote' takes place, with the government suffering a huge defeat, losing the vote by a majority of 230 (with 202 voting in favour of the Prime Minister's Brexit deal and 432 against).

Following this vote, Theresa May uses a point of order to set out how the Government intends to proceed.

Responding to the Prime Minister, the Leader of the Opposition tables a motion of no confidence in the Government, with a vote on the motion to be held at 7pm the next day, following a debate.

6. The 'Meaningful Vote' – present (24 April 2019)

Key events

16 January 2019: The Prime Minister wins a vote of confidence in the Government.

21 January 2019: Theresa May presents the government's 'Plan B' Brexit deal.

29 January 2019: MPs debate the Prime Minister's 'Plan B' deal, which is then approved following two amendments.

14 February 2019: The government's Brexit plan suffers a defeat in the House of Commons.

26 February 2019: The Prime Minister promises MPs a vote on ruling out a no-deal Brexit or delaying Brexit if she loses the second 'meaningful vote' next month.

7 February 2019

Theresa May meets President Juncker in Brussels, to review the next steps in the Brexit process.

President Juncker makes clear the EU27 will not reopen the Withdrawal Agreement, but expresses his openness to add wording to the Political Declaration.

8 February 2019

The UK reaches an agreement with Norway, Iceland and Liechtenstein (the EEA EFTA states) to protect citizens' rights in a 'no deal' scenario.

12 February 2019

Theresa May gives a statement to the House of Commons on the "Government's ongoing work to secure a Brexit deal that honours our commitments to the people of Northern Ireland, commands the support of Parliament, and can be negotiated with the EU".

The Prime Minister confirms that if there is no deal negotiated by 26 February 2019, then the government will make a statement on the same day and hold a debate on an amendable motion the following day (27 February 2019).

The Prime Minister's statement is repeated and debated in the House of Lords.

13 February 2019

The International Trade Secretary (Dr Liam Fox MP) responds to an urgent question on the progress made in replicating trade agreements between the UK and third countries with which the EU has a trade agreement.

Members of the House of Lords debate the government's ongoing Brexit discussions.

Baroness Smith of Basildon (the Leader of the Opposition in the Lords) proposes a motion calling on the government to take all steps necessary to ensure that the UK does not leave the EU on 29 March without an agreement that has been fully ratified by both Houses of Parliament, and that – before the end of February 2019 – motions are moved which fulfil the provisions under sections 13(1)(b) and (c) of the European Union (Withdrawal) Act 2018.

The motion is agreed, with 155 votes in favour and 69 against.

14 February 2019 Opening the Brexit debate, Stephen Barclay gives a statement to the House of Commons, asking for the continued support of the House in negotiating the UK's exit from the EU, in accordance with the approach that won a majority of MPs on 29 January 2019.

Several amendments to the governments motion are made, with the Speaker selecting three.

The official Opposition amendment – aiming to set a deadline for another ‘meaningful vote’ – is defeated by 322 votes to 306.

The SNP amendment – requiring that the Government immediately begin negotiations for an extension to Article 50 – is defeated by 315 to 93.

Anna Soubry's amendment – requiring that the Government publish its most recent no-deal briefing documents – is withdrawn, after the government offers to release ‘no deal’ information.

The unamended motion sees the government defeated by a majority of 45, losing by 303 votes to 258.

20 February 2019 The Prime Minister and President Juncker meet to discuss the Northern Ireland backstop and commit to avoiding a hard border on the island of Ireland.

25 February 2019 The UK signs an agreement with Switzerland to protect citizens' rights after the UK leaves the EU.

The Labour Party announces it will be prepared to back a second referendum if its withdrawal plan is rejected by MPs this week.

26 February 2019 Theresa May gives a statement to the House of Commons, promising MPs a vote on delaying the UK's departure from the EU or ruling out a no-deal Brexit, if she loses the second ‘meaningful vote’ next month.

The Prime Minister's statement is repeated and debated in the House of Lords.

27 February 2019 David Lidington (Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster and Minister for the Cabinet Office) leads a House of Commons debate on the UK's withdrawal from the EU.

The Speaker selects five amendments to the government's motion. MPs divide three times during the debate and a fourth amendment passes without a division.

The Opposition amendment – laying out support for Labour's alternative Brexit plan – is defeated by 323 votes to 240.

The SNP amendment – stating that the UK should not leave the EU without a deal “under any circumstances” – is defeated by 324 votes to 288.

Alberto Costa's amendment – guaranteeing the citizens' rights part of the withdrawal agreement be implemented even if there is no deal – is approved without division.

Yvette Cooper's amendment – noting the Prime Minister's statement that she will return to the House of Commons in March for a series of votes on her deal, the prospect of leaving without a deal, and extending Article 50 – is passed by 502 votes to 20.

Meanwhile, members of the House of Lords debate a motion “to take note of the further discussions with the European Union under Article 50 of the Treaty on European Union”.

6 March 2019	During a debate on the Trade Bill in the House of Lords, the government is defeated over an amendment that would oblige Britain to seek to remain in a customs union with the EU post-Brexit, by 207 votes to 141 .
8 March 2019	The Prime Minister delivers a Brexit speech in Grimsby and writes an article in the Grimsby Telegraph , asking MPs to support her in next week's Meaningful Vote. Referring to her Brexit deal, she writes: Back it, and the UK will leave the European Union. Reject it and we do not know what the consequences will be. We may not leave the EU for many months; we may leave without the protections that the deal provides; or we may never leave at all.

11 March 2019 Junior Brexit Minister Robin Walker responds to an Urgent Question on legal changes to the EU Withdrawal Agreement.

Theresa May travels to Strasbourg to meet Jean-Claude Juncker and Michel Barnier. In a statement following the meeting, the Prime Minister says she has secured “legally binding” changes to her Brexit deal.

On the eve of the second Meaningful Vote, David Lidington gives a statement to the House of Commons on Exiting the European Union.

12 March 2019 The Attorney-General gives a statement to the House of Commons on his “legal opinion on the joint instrument and unilateral declaration concerning the withdrawal agreement”, published the previous evening.

The Prime Minister open a House of Commons debate on the European Union (Withdrawal) Act.

Following the debate, the ‘Meaningful Vote 2’ vote takes place. The government suffers a large defeat, losing the vote by a majority of 149 (with 242 voting in favour of the Prime Minister’s Brexit deal and 391 against).

Following this vote, Theresa May uses a point of order to express her disappointment in the outcome of the vote and confirms she will open the debate the next day on whether to take ‘no-deal’ off the negotiating table.

Further to the PM’s announcement, the Leader of the House makes a short business statement, outlining the business for the following day and the remainder of the week.

13 March 2019 In a statement to the European Parliament Plenary Session, Michel Barnier says “last night’s vote in the House of Commons prolongs and worsens the major uncertainty that was created almost three years ago now by the sovereign decision – which we respect but regret – of the United Kingdom to leave the European Union.” He adds that it is the UK’s responsibility to find way out of the impasse in negotiations.

Looking ahead to House of Commons votes over the next couple of days, Barnier says: “It will be for the British government to tell us – I hope positively – how it wishes to proceed, to finally bring together a constructive majority for a proposal. It is the UK's responsibility to tell us what it wants for our future relationship, what its choice is, what its clear line is"

MPs again debate the UK's Withdrawal from the European Union.

The Speaker selects two amendments to the Government's motion, both of which go to a division.

Dame Caroline Spelman's amendment (moved by Yvette Cooper) – ruling out a 'no-deal Brexit' at any time – is passed by 312 votes to 308.

While this result demonstrates the will of MPs, it is not a binding amendment and does not definitively rule out a no-deal Brexit.

Damian Green's amendment (known as the 'Malthouse Compromise') – setting out the process for a managed no-deal – is rejected by a majority of 210, with 164 votes in favour and 374 against.

The day's final vote sees MPs voting on the government's amended no-deal Brexit motion: "That this House rejects the United Kingdom leaving the European Union without a Withdrawal Agreement and a Framework for the Future Relationship". The motion is passed by 321 votes to 278.

Following this vote, the Prime Minister uses a point of order to acknowledge MPs have provided a clear majority against leaving the EU without a deal, but reaffirms her view that "the deal on the table is indeed the only deal available." She confirms that the Government will bring forward a motion tomorrow on whether the House supports seeking to agree an extension to Article 50 with the EU.

This is confirmed in a short business statement by the Leader of the House.

14 March 2019

MPs debate the UK's Withdrawal from the EU.

The Speaker selects five amendments to the government's motion, four of which go to division.

Dr Sarah Wollaston's amendment – requesting an extension of Article 50 in order for a second referendum to take place – is rejected by 334 votes to 85.

Lucy Powell's amendment (itself an amendment to Hilary Benn's amendment) – specifying that any extension to the Brexit process should end by 30 June 2019 – is defeated by three votes: 314 to 311.

Hilary Benn's amendment – allowing MPs to take control of the Parliamentary business on 20 March, potentially to hold indicative (non-binding) votes – is narrowly rejected, by 314 votes to 312.

Jeremy Corbyn's Opposition amendment – rejecting both the Prime Minister's deal and a 'no-deal' Brexit, while also seeking an extension of Article 50 to allow time to find a different approach – is defeated by 318 votes to 302.

Chris Bryant's amendment – saying the Government cannot bring the same deal to MPs for a third 'Meaningful Vote' – is not moved.

The day's final vote sees MPs voting on the government's amended motion – to seek permission from the EU to delay Brexit beyond 29 March 2019. This motion is passed by 413 votes to 202.

15 March 2019

Theresa May issues a Written Statement, noting the motions of the House of Commons over the previous two days and confirming that "the Government will now seek to agree an extension with the EU".

The Statement also states:

As soon as possible following agreement at the EU level [expected during the European Council meeting on 21-22 March] the we will bring forward the necessary legislation to amend the definition of exit day in domestic legislation. This statutory instrument will be laid, before it is made, under section 20(4) of the EU (Withdrawal) Act 2018.

This legislation is subject to the draft affirmative procedure and so would need to be actively approved in each House. The legislation would give effect to any agreement with the EU on an extension, so would not be laid before Parliament until that agreement had been reached.

17 March 2019 In an article for the Sunday Telegraph, the Prime Minister writes: "The patriotic thing for MPs to do is vote for my Brexit deal".

18 March 2019 The Speaker of the House of Commons makes a statement in the Chamber, ahead of a third 'Meaningful Vote' that is expected over the coming days.

In this statement, the Speaker says a further meaningful vote would be ruled out of order if the motion was "the same or substantially the same", concluding:

If the Government wish to bring forward a new proposition that is neither the same nor substantially the same as that disposed of by the House on 12 March, that would be entirely in order. What the Government cannot legitimately do is to resubmit to the House the same proposition or substantially the same proposition as that of last week, which was rejected by 149 votes. This ruling should not be regarded as my last word on the subject; it is simply meant to indicate the test which the Government must meet in order for me to rule that a third meaningful vote can legitimately be held in this parliamentary Session.

Later, the Speaker grants an Urgent Question on the Government's plans in relation to the Article 50 period extension procedure.

20 March 2019 The Prime Minister writes to European Council President Donald Tusk, asking for an extension of the Article 50 period until 30 June 2019.

In Prime Minister's Questions, Theresa May updates the House on the planned extension to Article 50 and a third 'meaningful vote', saying:

I have this morning written to President Tusk, the President of the European Council, informing him that the UK seeks an extension to the article 50 period until 30 June.

The Government intend to bring forward proposals for a third meaningful vote. If that vote is passed, the extension will give the House time to consider the withdrawal agreement Bill. If not, the House will have to decide how to proceed. But as Prime Minister I am not prepared to delay Brexit any further than 30 June.

Following PMQs, Brexit Minister Chris Heaton-Harris responds to an Urgent Question on no-deal Brexit preparations.

The House of Commons later holds an opposition-led Emergency Debate on extending Article 50.

Donald Tusk issues a statement following Theresa May's Brexit extension request, saying:

I believe that a short extension will be possible, but it will be conditional on a positive vote on the withdrawal agreement in the House of Commons. We cannot give up seeking - until the very last moment - a positive solution.

In the evening the Prime Ministers delivers a statement from Downing St, setting out her hopes for the forthcoming Brexit negotiations.

21 March 2019

The European Council meets in Brussels, with an extension to Article 50 a key part of the agenda.

The Prime Minister makes her case in a 90-minute presentation, before the remaining EU27 leaders hold discussions late into the night.

After eight hours of talks, the European Council agrees to an extension of Article 50, meaning Brexit will no longer happen on 29 March 2019.

The European Council conclusions explain:

The European Council agrees to an extension until 22 May 2019, provided the Withdrawal Agreement is approved by the House of Commons next week. If the Withdrawal Agreement is not approved by the House of Commons next week, the European Council agrees to an extension until 12 April 2019 and expects the United Kingdom to indicate a way forward before this date for consideration by the European Council.

Following the conclusion of discussions, the Prime Minister delivers a statement at the European Council.

Donald Tusk later remarks on the outcome of the talks.

22 March 2019

Matthew Pennycook is granted an Urgent Question regarding the extension to the Article 50 process agreed at the European Council.

The UK's Permanent Representative to the EU writes to Donald Tusk, confirming the agreement to extend Article 50. The European Council adopts a Decision on the extension.

25 March 2019

The Prime Minister gives a statement to the House of Commons, following the European Council.

Later, David Lidington leads a House of Commons debate on a motion relating to Section 13(4) of the European Union (Withdrawal) Act.

The Speaker selects three amendments to the government's motion.

The Opposition amendment – calling on the government “to provide sufficient parliamentary time this week for this House to find a majority for a different approach” – is not moved.

Oliver Letwin's amendment – calling for Commons business on 27 March to be set aside for a series of indicative votes – is passed by 329 votes to 302.

Margaret Beckett's amendment – saying that if “no-deal” is ever a week away, MPs must either approve a no-deal or the Prime Minister be asked to seek another, longer extension – is narrowly defeated by 314 votes to 311.

The main motion (as amended) was passed by 327 votes to 300.

27 March 2019

Speaking in a debate in the European Parliament, following the recent European Council meeting, Donald Tusk says “12 April is the new cliff—edge date. Before that day, the UK still has a choice of a deal, no deal, a long extension or revoking Article 50”.

MPs debate a Business of the House motion providing for today's indicative votes debate. The motion passes by 331 votes to 287.

The Speaker selects eight motions to be put to an ‘indicative vote’ and MPs debate these motions.

Early in the evening, when addressing the 1922 Committee, Theresa May suggests she will stand down before the second stage of Brexit negotiations (on the future UK-EU relationship), reportedly telling Conservative MPs:

I have heard very clearly the mood of the parliamentary party. I know there is a desire for a new approach - and new leadership – in the second phase of the Brexit negotiations and I won't stand in the way of that.

Later, while the indicative votes are recorded, MPs debate the statutory instrument changing the date of Brexit as set out in the EU (Withdrawal) Act. The SI is approved in the Commons, with 441 votes in favour and 105 against.

The results of the eight indicative votes are announced:

John Baron's "No deal" motion – proposing leaving the EU without a deal on 12 April – is defeated by 400 votes to 160.

Nick Boles's "common market 2.0" motion – allowing continued participation in the Single Market and a "comprehensive customs arrangement" with the EU post-Brexit (until the agreement of a wider trade deal guaranteeing frictionless movement of goods and an open border in Ireland) – is defeated by 283 votes to 189.

George Eustice's "EFTA and EEA" motion – proposing remaining within the EEA and re-joining EFTA, but remaining outside a customs union with the EU – is defeated by 377 votes to 64.

Ken Clarke's "Customs union" motion – requiring a commitment to negotiate a "permanent and comprehensive UK-wide customs union with the EU" in any Brexit deal – is defeated by 271 votes to 265.

Jeremy Corbyn's "Labour's alternative plan" motion – proposing a close economic relationship with the EU – is defeated by 307 votes to 237.

Joanna Cherry's "Revocation to avoid no deal" motion – requiring the government to stage a vote on a no-deal Brexit two sitting days before the scheduled date of departure, should the government not have passed its withdrawal agreement; if MPs then refuse to authorise no-deal, the prime minister is required to halt Brexit by revoking Article 50 – is defeated by 293 votes to 184.

Margaret Beckett's "Confirmatory public vote" motion – requiring a public vote to confirm any Brexit deal passed by Parliament before its ratification – is defeated by 295 votes to 268.

Marcus Fysh's "Contingent preferential arrangements" motion – calling for the government to seek to agree preferential trade arrangements with the EU if the UK is unable to implement a withdrawal agreement – is defeated by 422 votes to 139.

28 March 2019 Andrea Leadsom (Leader of the House of Commons) announces the House will sit on 29 March to debate the government's Brexit deal.

29 March 2019 Writing for the Washington Post, the Foreign Secretary (Jeremy Hunt) says the UK will retain all the capabilities of a global power post-Brexit.

MPs debate the UK's withdrawal from the EU.

At the close of the debate, the government loses a vote on the motion ('Meaningful Vote 3' – or MV 2.5, as it has also been called) by 344 votes to 286.

Following this vote, Theresa May uses a point of order to outline the implications of the votes.

1 April 2019 MPs debate Oliver Letwin's business motion for the indicative votes process. This later passes by 322 votes to 277.

The Speaker selects four motions to be put to an 'indicative vote' and MPs debate these motions.

Meanwhile, in Westminster Hall, MPs debate a series of e-petitions relating to leaving the European Union.

Later, the results of the four indicative votes are announced:

Ken Clarke's "Custom union" motion – requiring any Brexit plan to include a commitment to negotiate a "permanent and comprehensive UK-wide customs union with the EU" – is narrowly defeated by 276 votes to 273.

Nick Boles's "Common Market 2.0" motion – proposing UK membership of EFTA and the EEA and allowing continued participation in the Single Market and a "comprehensive customs arrangement" with the EU post-Brexit, including a "UK say" on future EU trade deals – is defeated by 282 votes to 261.

Peter Kyle's "Confirmatory public vote" motion – requiring a public vote to confirm any Brexit deal passed by Parliament before its ratification – is defeated by 292 votes to 280.

Joanna Cherry's "Parliamentary Supremacy" motion – seeking an extension to the Brexit process or, should this not be possible, providing for Parliament to choose between either 'no deal' or revoking Article 50 – is defeated by 292 votes to 191.

2 April 2019

Yvette Cooper's European Union (Withdrawal) (No. 5) Bill – seeking to further extend Article 50 – has its First Reading in the House of Commons.

Following a lengthy Cabinet meeting, the Prime Minister makes a statement from Downing Street, announcing that she will seek a further extension of Article 50 and offering to sit down with the Leader of the Opposition in order to agree a Brexit plan that will win parliamentary approval.

3 April 2019

At the European Parliament's plenary session, President Juncker gives a speech to update MEPs on the Brexit negotiations.

MPs debate the business motion for the day's proceedings in the Commons. This is to allow MPs to pass the Commons stages of Yvette Cooper's bill by 10pm and provide time for further debate when it returns from the House of Lords.

Hilary Benn's amendment – to allow a further series of indicative votes the following Monday – goes to division. The result is a tie with 310 votes on each side; citing precedence, the Speaker uses his casting vote to side with the noes. This final vote is, therefore, 311 against and 310 in favour.

The main business motion – setting out the arrangements to the afternoon's debate on the Cooper bill – is then passed by a majority of one: 312 votes to 311.

Yvette Cooper's European Union (Withdrawal) (No. 5) Bill passes its Second Reading debate by 315 votes to 310.

The Bill goes to its next stage: Committee of the whole House.

Meanwhile, the Prime Minister holds formal discussions with the Leader of the Opposition.

Back in the Chamber, George Eustice's amendment – preventing the government from being forced to hold a vote if the European Council proposes an extension date that is different than that requested by Parliament – is defeated by 313 votes to 304.

10 April 2019

European Council meeting. Theresa May asks for an extension of Article 50 until the end of June. The Council then meets in an EU27 format to discuss the Prime Minister's proposal.

The UK and EU27 later agree a further extension of Article 50 until 31 October 2019 but with the possibility of leaving earlier if the Withdrawal Agreement is ratified by both parties before this date. The Conclusions adopted by the European Council are published. In addition to the revised Brexit date, the conclusions state:

If the UK is still a Member of the EU on 23-26 May 2019 and if it has not ratified the Withdrawal Agreement by 22 May 2019, it must hold the elections to the European Parliament in accordance with Union law. If the United Kingdom fails to live up to this obligation, the withdrawal will take place on 1 June 2019.

At the close of the European Council, the Prime Minister delivers a statement to the press.

11 April 2019

The Government publishes a letter confirming its agreement to extend Article 50.

Later, Theresa May gives a statement to the House of Commons on the European Council outcomes.

7. Future timetable

Key events

23-26 May 2019: European Parliament elections. The Prime Minister will hope to win approval of her deal before then, to avoid the UK participating in the EP elections.

1 June 2019: if the UK is still in the EU on 23-26 May and has not ratified the Withdrawal Agreement by 22 May and has not held EP elections, this will be Brexit Day.

31 October 2019: Brexit Day? At the European Council meeting in April 2019, the UK and EU27 agreed an extension of Article 50 to 31 October.

There is some uncertainty about the timing of events in this section and some are indicative only.

April 2019	The Prime Minister will hold further talks with the Leader of the Opposition to agree a Brexit deal. This new deal will then be put to the House of Commons for approval.
April/May 2019	EP candidate nominations must be submitted by 4pm on 24 April 2019, and voter registration must be completed by 7 May 2019.
May?	The EU (Withdrawal Agreement) Bill is introduced in the House of Commons. It amends the EU (Withdrawal) Act 2018 to save the effect of the European Communities Act 1972 during the transition/ implementation period; it implements other elements of the Withdrawal Agreement in UK law. This will be another opportunity for Parliament to debate and vote on the Withdrawal Agreement.
22 May 2019 or earlier	The Prime Minister will attempt to get approval from MPs on her Brexit deal. Ratification of the deal will ensure the UK avoids participating in EP elections
23-26 May 2019	European Parliament elections take place.
1 June 2019	'Brexit Day'? If the UK did not ratify the Withdrawal Agreement and did not hold EP elections in May, this will be Brexit Day – with or without a deal.
20-21 June 2019	EU Summit.

2 July 2019	The first sitting of the new European Parliament.
29 September – 2 October 2019	Conservative Party conference. Theresa May has indicated that she will stand down to allow a new Prime Minister to take forward the next stage of Brexit. Could the Conservative Party conference see a new Prime Minister installed?
17-18 October 2019	Meeting of the European Council: the last such meeting before 'Brexit Day'.
31 October 2019	'Brexit Day'? Following the European Council meeting in April 2019, this is the date by which the UK must leave the European Union. But a further delay cannot be ruled out.
November 2019?	A special summit of the EU27 is expected soon after the UK formally leaves the EU. Following Brexit, trade and future relations talks begin between the UK and EU.
31 December 2020	If the UK has ratified the Withdrawal Agreement, this is when the transition period ends (unless it is extended past 2020).
1 January 2021	Agreement on future relations expected to enter into force (unless transition period is extended).

About the Library
