

Statistics of National Lottery Awards:

September 1997

Research Paper 97/109

3 November 1997

This paper presents statistics on the number and value of awards from the eleven National Lottery distributing bodies by region and constituency. Awards on the Department for Culture, Media and Sport's database at the end of September 1997 are included in the paper. This paper will be updated quarterly.

Details of individual awards by constituency are available on request.

I Introduction

Between the date of the first lottery awards in January 1995 and the end of September 1997, there have been a total of over 20,700 awards made by the eleven National Lottery distributing bodies, with a total value of £4.0 billion.

This paper uses data supplied to the Department of Culture, Media and Sport (DCMS) by the eleven distributing bodies to look at the distribution of awards by region and constituency.

Awards made have been allocated to individual regions and constituencies mainly on the basis of the postal address of the recipient body. In some cases this does not correspond with the ultimate location of the project. Also, a number of awards are of benefit to a far wider area than the constituency and region to which they have been allocated. For example, awards to bodies based in London include many institutions that are considered of national importance and are of benefit to the country as a whole. The DCMS estimates that awards to these organisations currently account for 60% (around £485 million) of the total so far awarded to London.

Over the entire period of the current lottery licence, around 28% of the value of ticket sales is expected to be paid into the National Lottery Distribution Fund for distribution by the eleven distributing bodies representing five 'good causes'. The money is divided evenly between the 'good causes'. Therefore, at the end of September 1997, the total amount raised for the 'good causes' was around £3.9 billion from ticket sales of £14.1 billion. The amount awarded exceeds the amount raised, as most awards are not disbursed immediately. From 8 October 1997, a new 'good cause' was introduced, the New Opportunities Fund. This fund will receive $13\frac{1}{3}$ per cent of the money allocated to the NLDF, the Millennium Commission will still receive 20% and the other four original 'good causes' will receive $16\frac{2}{3}$ per cent.

Table 1 shows the number and value of awards by distributing body for awards on the Department's database at the end of September 1997.

Tables 2 to 6 show the number and value of awards broken down by 'good cause' and region. In terms of the number of awards allocated to UK regions, the North East, West Midlands, South West, Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland had a greater number per capita than the UK as a whole (Tables 2 and 5). The value of awards per capita in London was, at £133.50, more than double that for the UK as a whole (Tables 3 and 6). The average value of award was also greatest in London (Table 4).

Tables 7 and 8 show the number and value of awards by constituency and good cause. The constituency with both the highest value of awards and the most of awards was Cities of London and Westminster. Details of individual awards to constituencies are available on request or from the DCMS' website at <http://www.lottery.culture.gov.uk/>.
