

Marginal Seats

Standard Note: SN/SG/06549

Last updated: 8 February 2013

Author: David Hough

Section: Social and General Statistics Section

This note lists UK Parliament seats by marginality using results for the 2010 General Election. The results are taken from the Research Paper (RP10/36) General Election 2010 (Table 18.9)

Majorities are measured as the difference between the number of votes for the first and second placed candidates. Percentage majorities are these figures as a proportion of votes for all candidates and these are a better guide to relative marginality of different seats.

It is likely that the boundaries of parliamentary constituencies used in 2010 will be the same at the next General Election.

This information is provided to Members of Parliament in support of their parliamentary duties and is not intended to address the specific circumstances of any particular individual. - The most marginal seat in the UK is Fermanagh and South Tyrone, won by Sinn Fein's Michelle Gildernew from the independent candidate with a majority of 4 votes.
- The least marginal seat is East Ham won by Labour's Stephen Timms who has the largest majority in the UK, 27,826 over the Conservative Party in East Ham. Steve Rotherham, also Labour, has the largest percentage majority, 57.7% in Liverpool, Walton.
- The smallest majority recorded since 1918 is 2 votes, for A.J. Flint (Labour), in Ilkeston North in 1931 and for Mark Oaten (Liberal Democrat), in Winchester in 1997¹. The latter result was disputed and declared void due to an irregularity by the

¹ There was a tied vote in Ashton-Under-Lyne in 1886; the candidate, J.E.W. Addison, was elected on the casting vote of the Returning Officer (from F.W.S. Craig British Parliamentary Election Results 1885-1918, PRS,1989)

Returning Officer; in the re-run of the election, Mark Oaten had a majority of 21,556 votes.²

- The largest majority recorded since 1918 is 62,253 for Sir A.C. Rawson (Conservative), in Brighton in 1931. The Conservatives won a 1940 by-election in Middleton and Prestwich by a percentage majority of 97.4% over their only challengers, the British Union of Fascists and National Socialists. The largest General Election majority was 96.0% for Conservative G.B.H. Currie in Down North in 1959.³

The table below summarises the placing of the parties at the General Election. Of the 190 seats where the Conservatives were placed second, they trailed Labour in 77% and the Liberal Democrats in 20%. Of the 159 seats where the Labour candidates were placed second, they trailed the Conservatives in 86% and the Liberal Democrats in 11%. Of the 243 seats where the Liberal Democrats were placed second, they trailed the Conservatives in 69%; this contrasts with the 2005 election, where most of their second-place losses were to Labour (56%).
